Abstract

Pushkin! This sunny name accompanies us all our lives. We hear it for the first time in early childhood and, not yet able to read, we already repeat by heart from the words of our mother: "The wind walks on the sea and the boat urges."

Introduction

The world of Pushkin's fairy tales: about Tsar Saltan, about the dead princess, about the priest and his worker Balda - lives with us later, in school years. And the most important thing is that the writer teaches the child to smell and taste the poetry of the native Russian people: "There is a Russian spirit ... it smells like Russia there!

The poet awakens in young hearts a love for the artistic word, and for this we are grateful to the poet all his life. A kind and intelligent companion, he reminds us of the great riches of the Russian soul, of its love of freedom, blгодарство, of the courageous struggle for happiness, peace and justice.

After reading Pushkin, we fall in love with his works for life. Why? I think for the fun and wisdom, sadness and gratitude, for loyalty to the dream of spiritual freedom of man, which he carried through his whole life. He was miserable, sometimes disappointed, exhausted, wounded, and dying... But he always lit up the life around him with light. Pushkin enters our lives in childhood and stays with us until the end. Everyone finds in it something of his own, perhaps close and understandable only to him. For some, Pushkin is a teacher who helps to walk along the difficult road of life. He will give advice or say a few kind words, which are so few in our lives.

From an early age, we read fairy tales, learned to distinguish good from evil and cruelty. Didn't we ask the princess not to eat a poisonous apple, although we knew that she would eat it anyway and fall asleep? Were we not surprised at the greed of the old woman, who demanded wealth from a goldfish? With love they read Pushkin's poems, filled with tenderness and love. Reading the works, we learned Russian history.

What was this man who managed to win the heart of many generations? The answer is :
"There is a Russian soul in him, a Russian language, a Russian character..." N.V. Gogol.

"Reading his works, you can perfectly educate a person in yourself" V.G. Belinsky.

"Giant Pushkin, our greatest pride and the fullest expression of the spiritual forces of Russia"
M. Gorky.

With all his work, Pushkin served his native people and the people pay him with reciprocal love. The wonderful Russian language revealed to the poet all its richest possibilities. Pushkin's poems are both painting and music. They accompany us from early childhood through their lives and every time we return to them, we find something new in them. We need a poetry that reflects the life and soul of our contemporary.

Pushkin gives us the opportunity to understand what true poetry is, which is necessary for the people.

Entering the world of Pushkin's ideas and images, penetrating into the magnificent skill of Pushkin's poetic word, we learn a lot that will be useful in life.

Alexander Sergeevich Pushkin is a master of poetry and a teacher. Pushkin is very close and dear to us, we love his beautiful books, which bring up feelings of ardent devotion to his native country, teach us to love everything bright, beautiful and noble in life.

Throughout his creative life, the poet in his works touches on the theme of love, loyalty, friendship, nature, historical memory of the people. He is disturbed by reflections on the significance of his work, the place of poetry in his life, love for his homeland, the role of man in the history of the state.

Alexander Sergeevich Pushkin highly appreciates such wonderful human feelings as love and friendship. Love, in Pushkin's view, makes a person better, purer, nobler.

Love for Pushkin has been in us since childhood. This is more than love for a great poet, it is love for a people who have such a poet. Russia is inconceivable without Pushkin.

There are names like the sun! Names are like music! Like a Muse Like an apple tree in bloom!
I'm talking about Pushkin: Valid at any time!
